

The diameter of an object can be determined in different ways. If the position of a center is not known the diameter is simply measured using two sensors at opposite sides of the object. If the center of the object is known one sensor is sufficient – as below.

Diameter